

Hans' Gambling Compendium

By

Helga von Schweinitz

Introduction

This compendium is a collections information Hans collected on Gambling. Hans was always very good at certain gambling games. His favorites games were Poker and Black Jack (or 21). When Hans first entered the US Air Force in 1967, he was on a train from Chicago to San Antonio Texas with other men who had also been drafted and were going to Basic Air Force training at Lackland AFB. During the whole trip they played poker. By the time they reached San Antonio, Hans had most of their money.

Gambling was not always a hobby with Hans. By 1969, while still an Airman in the US Air Force, Hans had a wife and a baby daughter. The pay of an Airman was not enough to support a family. So Hans would play poker with Air Force Officers. He won enough to supplement his income to afford a family and some extras, such as a vacuum cleaner.

Later in life, Hans and his family would vacation in Las Vegas Nevada. By then Hans had added Black Jack to his repertoire. Hans would win enough to pay for the vacation and some extra cash.

He did research how to play Roulette and Craps, but other than trying them a few times, he was never as successful at these games.

The following is the progression that worked best for Hans. He kept a copy of this progression in his wallet at all times, just encase.
