President Picks Pop

Marshall's Labor-i

A huge, personally addressed invitation to the Presidential Inauguration arrived at the home of Susan, John and Chris Marshall; however, it could be considered more than just an invitation to the inauguration.

Sent in a battered envelope marked 'Do Not Bend', it could be an invitation to a whole new way of life.

Dr. Ray Marshall was designated by President Carter as his Secretary of Labor, early this month, and since then, Susan, John and Chris, a junior, sophomore, and freshman, respectively, have begun to adapt their plans for the next four years to fit into a Washington D.C. setting.

According to Chris and Susan, (John was unavailable for comment), this move to Washington is the least enjoyable result of their father's new position.

"When Dad first asked how we would feel about going to Washington, I said, 'Oh, neat, let's move.' But when he actually got the appointment, I changed my mind. Quickly," laughed Susan.

Meanwhile, Austin has been far from dull since their father's designation. For one thing, the press has been unusually attentive.

"We knew a day before they announced it that he had been
